

They interpret the Constitution's Second Amendment refs

Joe is right. I stopped reading immediately as should everyone else. The "journalist" lost all credibility in the first sentence. There is no debate over automatic weapons. They have been effectively banned for every civilian since 1936. And Obama and the Libby's so called "assault weapons ban" has absolutely no effect on automatic weapons. It does have an effect on semi-automatics, which is the vast majority of every good rifle made. Carl, tell me how your opinion should be worth the black on the paper when you refuse to do the research side of journalism? Thanks for being part of the problem.

I didn't read the article as I never got past "insisting automatic weapons"

Semi-auto weapons is one pull of the trigger, one shot. Automatic weapon is one pull of the trigger and the gun keeps firing. The average person and criminals don't have access to automatic weapons. The debate is over semi-auto weapons that look dangerous!

My issue is not with "the right to bear arms" its with the responsibility of the said partys to properly secure the wepons, there are to many wepons just being carried away from the rightful owners to be used in crimes. How about we make the owner just as responsible for the crime if the wepon used belonged to them, them maybe they will lock them up in a secure gun case or safe
