

FEBRUARY 15, 2016

The Federal Housing Administration offers reverse mortgages to qualified borrowers aged 62 and older, allowing people to take out a loan against their homes without making regular payments.

(Private companies also offer reverse mortgages, according to Carr, but the FHA offers the vast majority of the loans.)

Homeowners are required to keep current on their property taxes, pay their homeowner's insurance, and maintain their prop