

It took only four hours for their argument and rationale to be totally demolished by an employment law expert from Seton Hall University who testified before a §

