

https://www.pressofatlanticcity.com/news/atlantic-city-primary-battle-generates-big-mail-in-numbers/article_dcf1bf2f-47af-5146-b1d0-e0bb716defd4.html

Atlantic City primary battle generates big mail-in numbers

MICHELLE BRUNETTI POST Staff Writer Jun 3, 2019

Tuesday's 2019 primary election is hotly contested in Atlantic City, where 22 candidates are vying to represent their parties in the November general election.

WALDY DIEZ / Staff Writer

This year's primary election in Atlantic County has already generated far more mail-in ballots than 2018's primary, which included contested primaries for U.S. Senate and Congressional seats.

That's in spite of few hotly contested primary races outside of those for Atlantic City's City Council.

Deputy Atlantic County Clerk Mike Sommers said the clerk's office mailed out 11,022 vote-by-mail ballots, and 3,128 had been returned to the office for voting by Friday afternoon.

