

Biden moved perceptibly to the left during the primary campaign season, but not sufficiently so to satisfy those in the Sanders orbit.

The party establishment feared that, if nominated, the Sanders agenda would surely be rejected nationally as far too radical and work to the benefit of